

Is Violence Preventable, Like the Flu?

What if violence was 'catching' like chicken pox or the flu? If violence spreads like a disease, then perhaps disease control methods can be used to prevent it. Local public health experts are looking at violence in Spokane and asking these surprising questions to better understand the impact and spread of violence in the community.

It's time to address violence prevention in our communities. Join us for this critical conversation!

Facilitated by
Stacy Wenzl,
Spokane Regional Health District

December 6, 2016
5:45 P.M. - 7:30 P.M.
O'Doherty's Irish Grille
525 W. Spokane Falls Blvd., Spokane, WA 99201

$5 General Admission
includes discussion
and first beverage

Register at <http://www.nwabr.org/conversation/spokane>

What are Community Conversations?

Each informal Conversation explores a topic in biomedical science and its relationship with ethics, medicine, research and society, connecting people to the biomedical research community. Learning from each other, our goal is to help people thoughtfully engage in and advance biomedical research. Everyone is welcome. No science background necessary.