

Membership Information

NWABR has built a reputation for excellence, credibility and fairness among policy makers and the media and is a source of information and collaboration for members, students, educators and the media.

Eligible organizations include research institutions, schools, colleges and universities, hospitals, voluntary health organizations, biotechnology and pharmaceutical companies, laboratories, professional associations, organizations supporting research, and other organizations that undertake, support or promote biomedical research.

All employees of a member organization are considered NWABR members.

NWABR gratefully acknowledges and recognizes institutions that make donations and other contributions in addition to their membership fee. Members may also support specific activities of the NWABR with restricted grants or sponsorships. In addition to financial contributions many members also provide In-Kind support to NWABR, through supporting their staff to participate in planning committees, as volunteers, speakers, judges and mentors for programs, and through the provision of meeting and conference space and other resources.

Notes:

NWABR strongly supports the involvement of lay representatives from the community on institutional research committees. As a show of this support NWABR will encourage up to two community representatives per member organization per year to attend its IACUC, IBC or IRB conferences at no charge when there is at least one member employee registered for the conference.

Students at member High Schools may be invited at no-fee to NWABR programs if space permits, on a case-by-case basis.

NWABR is a 501(c)(3) non-profit educational and member services organization founded in Washington in 1988 and granted non-profit tax exemption status in 1989. Our EIN is 94-3079915.

Upon renewal NWABR will seek confirmation with each member as to the appropriate distribution of legislative, security and activist updates.

In terms of NWABR's Bylaws Platinum, Gold, Silver, Bronze and Individual Voting Members are Tier One Members. All other members are Tier Two Members.
